Deputations Here.

Mayor Scudliffe of the Strathcona Brewery appointed and asked for a reduction in water rate as outlined on a recent letter to the Council. The rate was of a rate of 6 or 7 cents per thousand gallons, similar to C.P.R. He was asked for the rate now being paid a 10 cents per 1000 gallons of 20 gallons.

"This rate has been thought a pretty one," said Ald. McFarland.

"It is costing me more than that to pump now," said the city engineer, "the lowest rate is that being given to the brewery now, outside the C.P.R."

The request was laid upon the table to be taken up with the City Engineer's report.

Mr. Scudliffe also appeared with reference to the city tax upon the brewery property. This was referred to the city engineer for information.

Reports of Committees.

New City Buses.

Ald. McFarland reported that a lease had been arranged with the city for the rental of two front rooms and three smaller ones in the new temple at $75 a month for one year, with the option of extension year by year for five years. The lease is to begin on the 1st of the year and also include a foot square in the corner of the building for a vault. The matter was left till next week for further consideration.

J. W. Foster, city assessor, reported with regard to Mr. Vogel's complaint of assessment that his measurements were perfectly correct. Mr. Vogel had said there were only two doors on the building but he had found three doors. After discussion of this assessment at some length it was confirmed as it had stood.

Sundry Business. The by-law with reference to the raising of $10,000 for a city park was given a second reading.

Ald. Crawford inquired about an old man who had lived as a charge on a city for some time. The matter should be referred to the sanitation and relief committee," said the Mayor.

Fire Protection Near Bridge. The Mayor brought up the question of better fire protection near the Strathcona bridge. He suggested placing the gasoline engine and a hose reel in a building near the bridge and later the organizing of a volunteer fire brigade under the control of the fire department. This section of the city is absolutely without fire protection at the present time," he said. This matter was referred to the fire and light committee.

The letter of the power house engineer, Mr. DeLong, was read. It called attention to the fact that he often called the fire hall by telephone and was unable to receive an answer. He also asked that the pumping station be wired with the fire alarm system, that a phone be installed in the power house, and that the fire hall be given a water and light connection with the power house, and that he be given free fuel, water and light.

With reference to the first part of the letter the Mayor said that the fire hall was in the fire hall and had been unable to find a person in the building. The Chief suggested that as a result have some one in the building all the time.

The question of the fire alarm box at the power house was referred to the fire and light committee who were instructed to arrange for such and they were also instructed to see that the telephone system at the fire hall be improved.

The request for a phone for Mr. DeLong was also given a second reading and was referred to the fire and light committee as a result of being in total darkness. This was referred to the fire and light committee if possible.

The last request was referred to the fire and light committee to report at next meeting of the council.

At an arranged that a special meeting of the Municipal Council be held on the 11th of the month at 8 o'clock in the evening at the City Hall.

All Beef Extracts stimulate! But stimulation is not enough.

Bovril does not stop there.

It stimulates certainly—but that is the least part. It nourishes—that is the important part. Stimulation may often be desirable—nutrition is essential.

What causes the difference? Bovril contains the albumen and fibrin of meat, which are necessary to maintain life.

Other extracts of meat do not contain them. Therefore a world of difference and the difference is all in favor of Bovril. Palatable—Stimulating—Nourishing.

FROM DAY TO DAY

A FAILURE?
A failure who had never achieved self victory, at last lay dead. "Poor fellow," wrote his neighbors grieved.
"Poor miserable wretch," they said. "His weakness was the worst of crimes."
He failed at least a thousand times.

Meanwhile the failure gave to God his vain attempts, humbly and prostrate on the knees and said, "I failed a thousand times," said he. "Welcome!" rang out the heavenly chorus.
"He strove," he strove a thousand times.

HOW WE "MAKE GOOD"

IN THE LAST WEST.
This west of ours, whether in the province or the untraveled north, is essentially a land of promise for the individual no less than for the group, and it is a poor policy in the West that does not beat to the tune of no building.

What will Edmonton be in twenty years? It offers fine scope for speculation, but not a white flint or rose inspiring than for each individual to see who is looking out to years of effort and action, and ultimate triumph.

We are here in the West to "make good" for the country's sake no less than for our own—and two of the qualities that are absolutely essential in the making good are clear grit and hard work. Brilliance in wit is well, but it is of little value without the other.

Genius is a Paintmaking Work.
Nothing great ever has been accomplished in the world without hard work, and what people in their simplicity call genius merely is the knack of putting one's shoulder to the wheel of life and never taking it off their own until they have rolled it up the steep hill on whose crest is the mansion of success.

Genius is the capability to work, to work hard, unremotely and unceasingly, until your object is attained. We hear and read of intellectual giants, industrial giants, and giants in every field of action, but if we take time to analyze their lives and works, we will find that they were not giants at all, just well-rounded individuals who so trained themselves and so dominated their wills that they availed themselves of every possible moment of time they could put to it to good use, while others were standing idly by, letting the golden gems of time slip through their fingers, never realizing that once lost they were lost for ever, and that no act or device could recover them.

Keep Pacing Away.
There they be such things, in the world as luck and chance, but who men never take a risk on them, they make their own luck, and get their own chance. If you sit down and wait for luck, in the future, you may find it is probable that something will get the other way and you can sit there long as you please.

You must be up and doing, utilizing every minute of your time if you wish to be successful. Never put off procrastination is the thief of time, you have no leave in the future, to-morrow's sun may never dawn for you.

Alfred the Great, the Saxon King of Britain, was a paragon of attainment in his time and also great a leader over the ninth century as Charles magnus did over the eighth. When asked how he found time to get his thing the multitalented tasks he performed, he answered, "I never sleep, I never sleep, I never sleep." And this reply is also the answer to the riddle of success.

Need of Grit.

But blind work without definite purpose, or timid work done in a half-hearted way will not of itself bring success, however unceasing. There must be a clear purpose in the work, and a grit that takes obstacles by the teeth and shakes them aside while hands and brain go on at their work. Most of the failures in life are due to want of grit or nerve. A yielding disposition, or, in other words, no backbone to stand up and a course and pursue it steadily, unswervingly to the end, leaves many a one behind in the race. You know how the boy who learned to skate by getting up every time he fell down and trying again. Men who have been always successful have often been defeated, but they turned each defeat into a stepping stone to further progress.

Examples in Real Life.

A failure here or there is not to be accounted fatal. The man or woman who would "make good" must learn the knack of rising after every blow, with the sensitive, aspiring, self-sufficient man to stand the next.

It is in me, and shall come out," said Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who told that he would never make an orator, but he had failed in his first speech in Parliament. He became one of the foremost orators of his day.

Perceval, afterwards Lord Chancellor, furnished another striking example. When he first spoke in the House of Commons his stammering speech, his odd attire, his Jewish race, his maiden speech ended in a fiasco, he was laughed or scoffed at him.

But Beaconsfield in his rage turned the scoffs and laughter into a triumph. The time will come when you will hear me!" And so it did.

It is in me, and shall come out," said Edmund Burke said: "Never despair, but if you do, work on in despair." Every successful man is a story of an iron will and invincible determination. Franklin dined on a small food in a printing office, but he lived in a printing office, and he was a printer.

Look! lived in a land and water in a Dutch garret. It was this same indomitable spirit that sustained Lincoln and Garfield on their hard journey from the log cabin and to the splendors of the White House. And all eventually won the success they merited.

Clear grit always commands respect, it is a quality which achieves something, a quality which works cultivation. For brains without backbone are of little worth.

A Man of Grit.
Then there was William Lloyd Garrison! Do you recall that most striking incident in his life. A broadsword was leading him through the streets of New York by a rope he carried in his hand. He started indignantly, to his work, beginning at the point at which he was interrupted. Note this leading in the Liberator!

"I am in earnest. I will not equivocate. I will not excuse. I will not treat a single inch, and I will be heard."

That one man of grit became God's red-hot thunderbolt that shivered the colossal iniquity—slavery. Even the angels erected in front of his door did not daunt him. His grit made an unswerving word his word "Freedom," and brought to the understanding of every estate slave in America.

There is work pressing for men of grit in the West, but it would take reams of paper to even indicate them, and it is not possible to do so. progress, and a few of the men of grit, and brothers, endeavoring to influence the West some of the most distinguished of self-reliance and courage. Not mere physical courage which is ordinary enough, but the courage to stand the fullest expression of the highest in themselves, to be strong, free and daring as well as true and sincere.

That to achieve the success of a complete manhood which needs no may leaves of Fame or blast of trumpets to proclaim of crown it.

WORK.
So stern he seemed and grave and soberwise. This friend of serious men and patient care: I teased him oftentimes by jest and merriment, and he would smile and say: That he should be so earnest all the while.

Yet now, when life grows harsh and sad, and life grows hard, and when our friends grow jagged, and when we are all in a state of indecision, I find my best release. With him alone I find my best release. From care—in deep forgetfulness and peace.

—Owen McMillan.

PRINCE ARTHUR TO COME.
The Marquis de Fautenay, that dashing authority upon European royalty and their doings, says that Prince Arthur, only son of the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by an imposing suite, will represent his uncle King Edward at the celebration next year of the bicentennial anniversary of the foundation of Quebec in 1608.

It was originally intended that the Duke of Connaught should visit the King, but his appointment as lord high commissioner of the British possessions in the Mediterranean, and of Egypt, and the Sudan, and the possibility of a change in the time of the Nile within the next year, render it impossible for him to cross the Atlantic.

Prince Arthur, though relatively young in years, is blessed with an

THE CONVICTION OF THE LUMBER DEALERS.

The conviction of the Alberta Retail Lumber Dealers' Association is a penalty the members have brought upon themselves. The prosecution and conviction grew out of the Parliamentary investigation into the conduct of the lumber business. That investigation was the response of Parliament to the demand of the public. That demand was the expression of public belief that the lumber business of Western Canada was controlled by an organization or organizations whose business in life was to stiffle competition and to unduly enhance the prices of lumber. For the creation of this public conviction, the lumbermen have themselves to thank. It was neither born of prejudice nor fostered by unreasoning antagonism. It was created and developed by a course of studied greed on the part of the lumber dealers themselves. For the trouble it has brought upon them they have only themselves to blame. It is merely an illustration of the time-honored maxim that "Chicken come home to roost."

At the same time a large measure of credit is due the Government of Alberta for promptly testing the validity of this public belief by entering prosecution against the lumber dealers on the strength of the evidence of the Parliamentary committee. This course was demanded both in justice to the public and in justice to the lumber dealers. The public has a right to know it was the business of the Government to reveal whether or not that grievance had a foundation in fact. The lumber dealers would have been in no better position to defend against the law; it was equally the duty of the Government to give them an opportunity to prove the accusation false. This duty was discharged and the accused could be discharged in only one way—by prosecuting the accused in the name of the accusing public. Either that course must be adopted or the accusation must go unheeded, and the stigma of an untried accusation be left upon a large and reputable class of citizens. The prosecution was conducted. The case was tried on its merits. If the result is unsatisfactory to either party they have the consolation of knowing that it is not because their cause had so little merit. To the Government belongs the credit of having faithfully discharged their duty to both parties. As the representatives of the public they put a public grievance to the test; as the guardians of public rights they provided the accused section of the public the opportunity to defend themselves from the accusation. With the result of the case the Government at large has no concern. The undertaking and prosecution of the case was their public duty. Their credit is that they did not shrink that duty. Their devotion to duty meant for the public.

The result of the Alberta prosecution should have far-reaching consequences in Western Canada. It should be followed by prompt action on the part of the Manitoba Government in prosecuting the Western Retailers' Association, which operates through out Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The Parliamentary committee found the Western Association equally culpable to the Alberta Association. The head-quarters of the Western Association is in Manitoba. It was organized there, extended its operations over the entire prairie country, but continued to be organized and directed from Winnipeg. The separation of the Alberta dealers left it in control of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Presumably the British Government has been waiting to see how the Alberta prosecution terminated before entering action. The result is before them. It is up to them to follow suit.

Of still more consequence would be the prosecution of the Mountain Millmen's Association, and the Coast Millmen's Association, by the Government of British Columbia. The members of these Associations control the greater of lumber supply for the whole Western country. They have it in their power to say how large or small that supply shall be and to whom it shall be sold. The Parliamentary investigation and the Alberta prosecution produced a large volume of evidence that they have used the power for the maintenance of the Retailers' Associations. Had they not done so, it is difficult to see how the retailers could have maintained domination of the nature and for the purpose of those operating on the prairie. No combination of retailers on the prairie could successfully stiffle competition in the open market, provided stock was equally readily to retailers not in the combination. No retailers' combine could maintain exorbitant prices if the millmen sold at equally favorable terms to non-members of the combine. The Parliamentary committee recommended this, and recommended the section of the combine to the attention of the British Columbia authorities. Those authorities have not yet made no move toward their prosecution, nor even toward the further investigation of their manner of operation. The conviction of the Alberta Retailers' organization as an illegal combine throws an additional obligation on the McBride Government to test the legality of the Millmen's Association. If it moves them to action along this line we may have an early remedy to the evil of improper manipulation of the lumber business. Without such action, the prosecution of the Retailers organizations can at best only curtail the evils.

On the commercial life of the Province the prosecution of the lumber dealers should have a wholesome influence. To all evil of improper manipulation to follow their methods it extends the prospect of sharing their fate. It establishes the Provincial Government as a prosecuting body in this position as well as in position. It is the proof of their responsiveness to public opinion. It should be a sufficient warning to others to not provide the public opinion.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Something new in the way of municipal financing came to light at last night's council meeting. Among the accounts was an item which represented the city owing the assessed $100,000 for taxes. An inquiry followed and added information of one of the expenditures by which we have been enabled to pull through the summer. When the financial hospital uptown we were left absolutely without cash. The bank would lend us no more. An appeal was made to a private firm to advance a loan of $100,000 as an advance of their taxes, which would be due this fall. The appeal was met and the money loaned us at six per cent. At the time we were paying the bank eight per cent. The head of the firm who came to our relief was the gentleman whose candidacy for the mayoralty has drawn upon him the accusation of being lacking in public spirit.

The nomination of Mr. McQuibb as the protest of the business men of the city against the kind of administration we have been getting—not necessarily an expression of antagonism toward the person of that administration. Who has administered the city's affairs is not the question. The point of importance is how they have been administered. To put it mildly, the method of administration has not been satisfactory. In the face of a money straits we plunged into a programme of enormous expenditure without knowing where the money was to come from. Once undertaken, the programme could only be partially abandoned. A large part of what was abandoned was left in the half-completed condition. A large part of what was not abandoned was muddled. In either case the latter state was worse than the former. Together we spent this year a million and a quarter dollars, and contracts have been let bringing it up to a million and a half. For a large part of this we have received no fair value. Meanwhile, having no money when we began work we have been financing our last we might, and in a time of stringency the best is not very good. We have carried enormous overruns at the bank at high rates of interest. We have sacrificed debentures in an unfavorable market. In one case we sold to a purchaser who could not pay for them and generally waited near for six months until we got the money. In the meantime we borrowed the money from the bank at seven per cent. The bonds will come up for the interest from the date we which we purchased them. So, then for that six months we shall have paid something like twelve per cent for the half million dollars we were supposed to get at four and one-half. Is it any wonder the business men of the city rose in protest and presented one of their number with the largest requisition ever tendered a candidate for municipal honors in the city?

So far the only argument raised against Mr. McQuibb's candidacy is the very reason for which he was asked to become a candidate. It is argued that he has been too discerning and too energetic in his private affairs. Well, it is some credit to him that since the city of Edmonton suffered an excess of sagacity or care in the management of its affairs. If Mr. McQuibb can bring to the management of civic business one-half the astuteness he is accused of having displayed in his own business, and if he has produced at the city hall any reasonable indication of the success his opponents announce him to have achieved in private, he will have fulfilled the purpose of his nomination and left a record which his successors will have trouble in reaching. That a man has been diligent and successful in his own business, and if he has produced at the city hall any reasonable indication of the success his opponents announce him to have achieved in private, he will have fulfilled the purpose of his nomination and left a record which his successors will have trouble in reaching. That a man has been diligent and successful in his own business, and if he has produced at the city hall any reasonable indication of the success his opponents announce him to have achieved in private, he will have fulfilled the purpose of his nomination and left a record which his successors will have trouble in reaching.
